

The Millennium Companies
Notice Regarding Data Security Incident

At the Millennium Companies, protecting the privacy of personal information is of the utmost importance.

The Millennium Companies learned that an unauthorized individual obtained access to a limited number of the Millennium Companies employee email accounts between October 21, 2019 and December 18, 2019. The Millennium Companies immediately launched an investigation in consultation with outside cybersecurity professionals who regularly investigate and analyze these types of situations to analyze the extent of any compromise of the email accounts and the security of the emails and attachments contained within them. The Millennium Companies devoted considerable time and effort to determine what information was contained in the affected email accounts. Based on its comprehensive investigation and document review, which concluded on May 27, 2021, the Millennium Companies discovered that the compromised email account(s) contained a limited amount of personal information, including full names and one or more of the following: Social Security numbers, driver's license numbers, state identification numbers, individual taxpayer identification numbers, passport numbers, credit or debit card information, financial account information, username and password for one or more online accounts, and limited medical information (treatment, diagnosis, medical record numbers, patient account numbers, Medicare or Medicaid information and health insurance identification numbers). Not all affected individuals had each of these data points impacted.

To date, the Millennium Companies has no evidence that any of the information has been misused. On June 29, 2021, the Millennium Companies notified those potentially affected via U.S. Mail to the extent it had a last known home address. Notified individuals have been provided with best practices to protect their information. Credit monitoring services have been offered to individuals whose Social Security numbers were impacted.

The Millennium Companies is committed to maintaining the privacy of personal information in its possession and has taken many precautions to safeguard it. The Millennium Companies continually evaluates and modifies its practices and internal controls to enhance the security and privacy of personal and protected health information. If you did not receive a notice letter and you think you may be impacted, please contact the dedicated toll-free response line that has been set up at 1-833-909-3945, Monday through Friday, 9 am to 9 pm Eastern time.
